

Andersen Construction

A majority of the time Andersen Construction does not hire contractors that pay the area wage standard. Area wage standards help ensure workers receive a wage that reflects their cost of living. Preventing exploitation by employers and promoting a more equitable distribution of income, they ensure fair compensation for workers and help prevent the artificial depression of wages in government funded projects. These contractors underpaying their employees reduces the workers abilities to take care of their families. It also impacts their spending power which affects local businesses.
